The Saints Everlasting Rest: Or a Treatise of the Blessed State of the Saints, in Their Enjoyment of God in Glory (Classic Reprint) Richard Baxter

My Dear Friends, If either I or my labours have any thing of public use or worth, it is wholly (though not only) yours. And I am convinced by Providence, that it is the will of God it should be so. This I clearly discerned in my first coming to you, in my former abode with you, and in the time of my forced absence from you. When I was separated by the miseries of the late unhappy war, I durst not fix in any other congregation, but lived in a military unpleasing state, lest I should forestall my return to you. The offers of greater worldly accommodations were no temptation to me once to question whether I should leave you :your free invitation of my return, your obedience to my doctrine, the strong affection which I have yet toward you above all people, and the general hearty return of love which I find from you, do all persuade me that I was sent into the world especially for the service of your souls :and that even when I am dead I might be yet a help to your salvation, the Lord hath forced me, quite beside my own resolution, to write this treatise, and leave it in your hands. It was far from my thoughts ever to have become thus public, and burthened the world with any writing of mine ;therefore have I often resisted the request of my reverend brethren, and some superiors, who might else have commanded much more at my hands. But see how God overruleth and crosseth our resolutions !Being in my quarters far from home, cast into extreme languishing, (by the sudden loss of about a gallon of blood, after many years foregoing weakness,) and having no acquaintance about me, nor any book but my Bible, and living in continual expectation of death, I bent my thoughts on my everlasting rest: and because my memory, through extreme weakness, was imperfect, I took my pen and began to draw up my own funeral sermon, or some help for my own meditations of heaven, to sweeten
